

iSeries and AS/400 Work Management

This very technical course involves the student in the “internals” of the AS/400 architecture. It delves into job processing and how the processing of a company’s workload can be streamlined and tailored for it's specific environment to maximize the companies investment in this platform.

With very intense hands-on exercises, student will to create and modify subsystems, the flow of batch and interactive jobs, to obtain and evaluate performance-related system values, and in depth security concepts.

Duration:

- 5 Days, Instructor-led

Prerequisite:

- Course 220: iSeries and AS/400 System Operations

Topics Include:

- Job Descriptions
- Job Attributes
- Subsystem Creation/Modification
- Batch and Interactive Job Flow
- Performance-Related System Values
- Performance Tuning
- Memory Management
- Performance Commands
- Job Queues
- Output Queues
- Final module is our Security Concepts class